CIT to pause classes for one week from Monday 23 March

CIT has made the decision to pause teaching and learning activities for one week, from Monday 23 March and ask students not to attend campuses. This pause will give CIT teaching staff the opportunity to reconfigure delivery of teaching and learning so we can continue to provide high quality training for students.

During this week student support services will still be available. The CIT Student Support team can provide you with guidance, referrals and support to cope with different aspects of student life.

Counselling and support services are free for all students and apprentices including international and migrant students, students with a disability and students from equity groups. During the pause, phone and online support is available for all students.

For information or to make an appointment with CIT Student Support, call (02) 6207 3290 or email CIT.Student.Support@cit.edu.au.

In addition to this, the CIT Student Association will also be open and available to provide support to all students.

Facilities and spaces across all CIT locations will remain open but we strongly encourage students not to attend campuses. The facilities that will remain open include, libraries, CIT Fit & Well facilities for members, and the Reid Early Childhood Centre.

Visit the CIT website for more information about our commercial operations.

At all times, social distancing and personal hygiene practices will continue to be in place at all CIT locations. We anticipate recommencing learning and assessment activities on Monday 30 March, and hope to continue through to our scheduled break on Thursday 9 April.
